Susan Milmoë. How can anyone squash it all into a 3-inch cube? What on earth to say? Do I want to say anything? Well... I spent a pleasantly protracted adolescence in Cambridge, Mass., getting too many degrees in social psychology. I taught at Dartmouth and finally for a miserable mid-life crisis year at Lafayette. 9 years ago I bailed out to be a publisher in NYC: executive editor for the behavioral/brain sciences at Cambridge University Press overseeing publishing programs worldwide. I travel a lot. Vis a vis spouses, my mother thinks I am Too Picky. I hope the WPHS friends who mattered know who they are...with some I am still in touch.

DAVID MISHKIN-- After a 3 year frolic in the Army, I graduated from RIT in 1969 with a BS in photography. Spent several years in that field then switched to photofinishing management. Married Katherine and had Matthew 9 and Daniel 7. Three years ago I opened a custom B&W processing lab. Spend all of my free time (both minutes of it) gardening. I have lost track of all my H.S. friends and am grateful for this reunion.

Christopher Moore: After WPHS I went to Yale, eventually getting a BSEE. I taught in Vermont, then moved to Boston, where after 2 jobs and 8 years, I started a company to design pro audio equipment. I've been fortunate in being able to work with music and electronics. I've travelled some in Europe, and have enjoyed making new friends abroad. I moved into an older Victorian house 2 years ago, and feel at home here. As yet unmarried, I have generally been coupled. I enjoy music, electronics, computers, running, and a few close friendships. My 2 years at WPHS were very good: friendships formed there have been more precious and enduring than those of my college years.
